THE WALTER YOUNG COAL CO.

Hon. George Colvin, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, will make two of his splendid addresses during the School Rally. You should not fail to hear this man.

Let us deliver you a Primrose Cream Separator. Cream going up, separators have gone down. There is a profit for you.—E. L. and A. T. Byron's.

The School Rally this year on Sept. 23 and 24th promises to be bigger and better than ever before. Everyone will want to attend both days.

License to wed was issued Monday to Jas. Goldy, son of Jack Goldy, and Miss Nina May Bashaw, daughter of D. P. Bashaw of the Salt Lick neighborhood.

Mr. Merchant: what about a few decorations for the School Rally. Should not Owingsville welcome her visitors by some display of the spirit of celebration?

HOUSE FOR SALE

I want to sell my home and lot, where I live for $5,000 cash or payments, will take as little as $1,000 cash, balance, if suits purchaser better, $1,000 each year until paid, bearing 6 per cent. interest. Can give possession October 1, 1921, anytime to suit purchaser, if agreed to. Reason for selling, want to build on vacant lot closer in town. This place has two never-failing cisterns, eight six feet stone veranda, bath room and furnace, two dining rooms and plenty of rooms in first class residence.

PERSONAL

Sam Nixon, of Mt. Sterling, visited friends here Monday.

Mrs. E. H. Goodpaster was in Lexington Tuesday.

A. T. Byron was in Louisville, on business last week.

Mrs. G. C. Ewing is visiting relatives in Cincinnati.

Miss Wynona Carmichael, of Louisville, visited friends here Saturday.

Alex. Conner, of Chicago, arrived here Sunday. He will probably remain some time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shankland have returned from a visit to friends in Millersburg.

Lacy Byron, of Louisville, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Byron.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Martin and daughter, Miss Micha, were in Lexington Saturday.

Walton Ulery, of Hazard, Ky., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Ulery.

Fassett Botts, of Louisville spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Seth Botts.

Mrs. Coleman Elliott and little daughter Marie Coleman, were in Lexington Friday.

Miss Rose Jones, of Winchester, spent the week-end with her sister Mrs. Floyd Ross.

Our Fratern and wife, of Perryville, are spending a week or so with relatives and friends here.

Earl Rolph and family, of Mt. Sterling, visited Mr. Rolph's parent Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Rolph Sunday.

Wm. Bailey, of near Winchester, was called home by the serious illness of his father John S. Bailey.

Harry Maury, wife and daughter, of Louisville, visited H. C. Gudegg and wife the latter part of last week.

Geo. Kerr and Mrs. Minnie Goodpaster, Joe Arnold and Miss Ruth Donchew spent Sunday at Boonesboro.

John Adair Richards will leave Thursday night to resume his studies at University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va.

Emil Peters, of Georgetown, visited his mother Mrs. Laura Peters and sister Miss Louie Peters Saturday and Sunday.

Wm. Estill and Brooks Byron have returned from a visit to the former's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Estill, of Fleming county.

Clark Bascom and daughter Miss Sue and Miss Dorothy Bowman, of Millersburg, were guests of Mrs. S. F. Owsley Sunday.

Miss Reva Estill, who has been visiting her aunt Mrs. R. C. Byron for several months, left for her home at Walthill, Nebraska, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Barnes and son, Clay P., who have been the guests of relatives here for several weeks, left Sunday for their home at Eugist, Fla.

Dr. Adaline Bell, of Cynthia, came Monday to visit her niece Mrs. Edgar Denton, for a few days before leaving for Hazard where she will make her home in the future.

Mrs. J. E. Moss and little daughter of Nicholasville, are visiting Mrs. Moss' mother Mrs. J. A. Daugherty.

Mrs. S. V. Johnson and daughter Miss Thelma, visited relatives in Lexington last week.

Eugene Brother has returned from a business trip to Hazard. He reports all the Bath county people there doing well. J. J. Thomas and Walton Ulery holding down jobs and the Gault boys, Paul and Gano, among the most successful business men of that thriving town.

Our attention has just been called to the fact that in the tabulation of the vote for jailer in the primary election, Aug. 6, we only gave Mr. Nathan Sorrell, Jr. 7 votes in Bethel No. 2 and it should have been 78 making Mr. Sorrell's total 471, the second man in the race. This was the County Clerk's mistake and not ours.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank the friends and neighbors and especially Dr. Jones for the kindness shown us in the illness and at the death of our dear son, Marvin.

Mr. and Mrs. Roe Hart.

If you have found a bunch of keys on iron ring return them to

ANNUAL MEETING

At the annual meeting of members of Christian Churches at the Upper Mill Creek Church Sunday there were said to be between 3,000 and four thousand people. There were some eight or ten ministers present and there was preaching by Revs. Willhoit, Spencer, Crouch, Adams and others. An abundant dinner was served on the ground and all those present enjoyed the day. Of course only a small part of the crowd could get into the meeting house and there were overflow meetings on the outside. The day was an ideal one for such an occasion. Several from this place attended the meeting and they are convinced that these annual meetings are conducive to much good, especially in the fraternalizing of the members of so many church congregations. This association is composed of about thirty churches of Bath, Montgomery, Menefee and Rowan counties and they hold a meeting every year on the second Sunday in September.

Appointment Revoked

The Methodist congregation was not satisfied with the appointment made by the late Conference held at Somerset for the Owingsville Church, and at a meeting held at the church Monday night a resolution was passed declining to accept it. The Conference appointed Rev. C. L. West, to this charge. Now, no one has anything against Mr. West who is well known and liked here, but he proposed to retain his home at Mt. Sterling and fill his appointments here. It was against this arrangement the protest was made. Rev. C. L. Wilson, who has been pastor here for the past year, was appointed to the West Liberty Church this year. The resolution adopted Monday night was immediately telephoned to Presiding Elder Geo. Cameron at Lexington, who notified Mr. Wilson to remain here until further notice.

LAW AND ORDER.

An enforcement-of-the-law meeting at the Court House Monday brought together a large audience of Bath county citizens who indicated by their presence and interest that they were going to stand by the officers, judge and jurors in maintaining the supremacy of the law and bringing to successful prosecution all offenders. There were some strong speeches from leading citizens, an executive committee appointed and a rising vote of the audience, that consisted of persons from all sections of the county, that our laws against gambling, bootlegging and moonshining can and will be enforced.

M. E. Church Conference

The annual Conference of the M. E. Church South held at Somerset last week closed Sunday. Following are few of the appointments of preachers well known here:

St. Luke's Church, Covington, Geo. D. Prentiss; Cynthia, J. E. Moss; C. L. Bohon, Presiding Elder Danville district; Danville, J. M. Fuqua; Harrodsburg, J. D. Redd; Geo. E. Cameron, Presiding Elder Lexington district; Jenkins, A. W. Vanderpool; Mt. Zion, F. D. Palmer; Hillsboro, E. M. Armitage; Millersburg, W. D. Wilburn; Sharpshorn, Bethel, E. C. Pillow; Carrollton, T. W. Watts.

There will be three base ball games played during the School Rally this year. These games will be worth while. $10.00 worth of base ball goods will be given to the winner of the series.

Floods caused by torrential rains caused loss of life estimated by the police at 500 and immense destruction of property at San Antonio, Texas. Over 2,000 people are homeless.

The school exhibits displayed at the School Rally this year will be more attractive than in the past. Children all over the county are working hard to excel in the various contests.

Don't forget Prof. Coleman's recital at the Lyric Theatre Wednesday, September 21. Proceeds for benefit of Owingsville Band. The band is also expected to make its first public appearance on that night and play a few numbers in front of theatre before the recital. If you want a band here this is your chance to help them.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. Edsel Ford, President of the Ford Motor Co., makes the following announcement:

"We are making another reduction in the prices of Ford cars and Ford trucks, effective to-day. The new prices average $70.00 under former prices and are the lowest at which Ford cars and trucks have ever been sold. List prices F. O. B. Detroit are now as follows:

	New Price	Old Price	Amount of Reduction
Chassis	$295	$345	$50
Runabout	325	370	45
Touring Car	355	415	60
Truck	445	495	50
Coupe	595	695	100
Sedan	660	760	100

"This the third price cut during the past twelve months. On September 22, 1920, the price of the Ford touring car was reduced from $575 to $440; June 7th to $415 and now to $355, making a total reduction in this type of $220, or 38 per cent. The same proportionate reductions have been made in all other types. One year ago the price of the Ford Sedan was $975; today it lists at $660 with the same equipment.

"We are taking advantage of every known economy in the manufacture of our products in order that we may give them to the public at the lowest possible price, and in doing that we feel that we are doing the one big thing that will help this country into more prosperous times. People are interested in prices, and are buying when prices are right.

"The production of Ford cars and trucks for August again broke all previous high records with a total reaching 117,696. This is the fourth consecutive month in which our output has gone over the one hundred thousand mark, the total for the four months being 463,074, which has gone a long way in making possible the present reductions. June this year, with an output of 117,247, was the previous record month.

"One noteworthy feature of our sales is the increased demand for Ford trucks and cars for sale. This class of commercial business has been gradually increasing the past sixty days and we interpret it as being a good sign of improvement in general business.

"No reduction has been made in the price of the Fordson tractor, and none is contemplated."

Go over these prices! See how little it costs to become owner of a Ford car or truck. Can you really afford to do without one any longer?

Let us tell you more about it, and advise you regarding the delivery of particular type of car in which you are interested.

Secretarial School: First of Its Kind

W.D. SCOTT UNIVERSITY HALL AND HARRIS HALL

ATIONAL School for Commercial Secretaries, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries and Northwestern University!

Isn't there something new under the sun, in spite of the proverb? Anyway, that is the sort of school that has been going on in Evanston, Ill., right in the vacation days of summer.

Moreover, this National Secretarial school is believed to be a project of far-reaching importance in the business and civic life of the country. John Thider, manager of the civic development department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, speaking for himself and for President Joseph H. Deffres, puts the situation like this:

"The American business man today stands in a position of greater responsibility and greater opportunity than ever before in our history, for we are becoming predominantly an urban and a business nation. His responsibility must be discharged, his opportunity must be intelligently used, or the common interests of their community, but in order that they may so serve their people that good intentions alone never produce results.

"The effectiveness of a commercial or trade association depends in large measure on the secretary. As he increases in knowledge and understanding, not only of his own business technique and of his local field, but of the general principles that underlie and affect all business and civic interests, he will become increasingly valuable to his organization and to American business generally.

"The National School for Commercial Organization Secretaries will give to these men in a short time what it would take years for them to learn individually, and will in addition give them a sense of their common problems and responsibilities which can be secured only by a group of men representing many communities studying their problems impersonally and under able leadership."

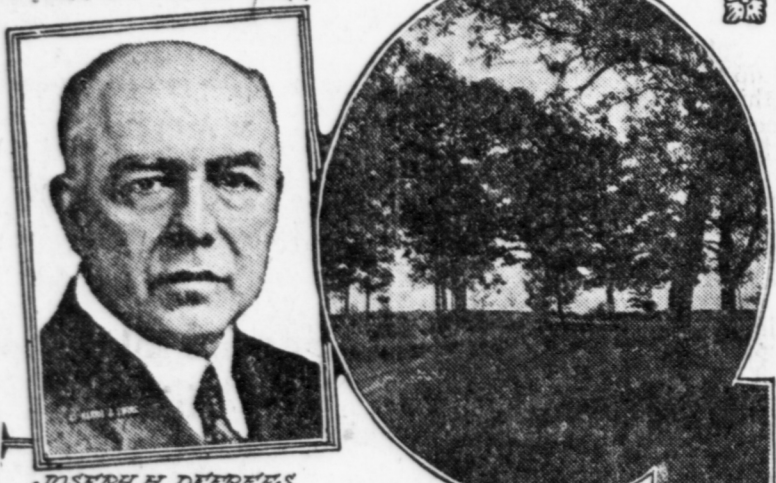

President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern University is a man of many parts. He is a graduate of Northwestern (A. B., 1895) and McCormick Theological Seminary (1898). He is a Ph. D. (Leipzig, 1900). Probably he is best known as a psychologist.

He was a colonel, U. S. A., 1917-18, and was awarded D. S. M. for "daring, installing and supervising the personnel system in the U. S. army." He is primarily interested Ostracism.

At one period in the history of ancient Greece the people of Attica possessed the power of removing from the state, without making a definite charge, any leader of the people likely to overthrow the government. This was so abused that in time it became the right to drive into exile any person who had become unpopular without much regard to the cause of his loss of popularity. The decision was African Salt. A report made to the French Society of Biology shows that 25,000,000 human beings in the Congo region commonly employ salt of potassium instead of salt of sodium for seasoning their food. They obtain this salt from the ashes of certain plants. Since the opening up of the country ordinary salt has been largely imported, but the negroes regard it as insipid, and abundance with regret to house of their familiar ashes. They have imported salt only because it is cheap.

JOSEPH H. DEFFRES

in the benefit the country will receive through the increased efficiency of the secretaries. He says:

"The students at our summer school today for commercial secretaries are mature men of unusual ability and leaders in their communities. The effect of the summer school on these men will be to strengthen their faith in the modern, practical, scientific method of dealing with their problems and to strengthen them in their faith in the necessity of analyzing all local problems in terms of wider experience. I am particularly interested in this session of the summer school, not primarily for what those who attend will receive, but for the added service they will be able to render their communities upon their return. In this period of reconstruction and readjustment, our progress is dependent upon our application of science and our profit by experience wherever available. I feel, therefore, that this school will be of inestimable value because of the increased value these secretaries will be able to render their communities."

This secretarial school is, in brief, an intensive course of two weeks in secretarial problems and methods. That there is need of this school is shown by the registration of the first year, which surpassed even the officials of the three organizations back of it. This registration of 200 men was representative of every section of the United States, including Hawaii. Canada sent its quota and Cuba was represented. Several women attended. While most of these in attendance were registered as secretaries of chambers of commerce, the list shows others in considerable variety.

The study was of two kinds, fundamental and technical. The instructors in the former were educators of national prominence and in the latter leading authorities in the secretarial ranks. Harris hall was used as a classroom. Two hours a day was devoted to fundamentals and three and a half hours to technical subjects. Munson Havens, secretary of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, lectured on "The Secretary, His Relation to the Varied Forms of Service, What Is Expected of Him and What He Should Expect of Himself."

The technical studies and the groups of secretaries who directed the study of them are:

Organization (What It Is), J. A. McKibben, general secretary, Boston Chamber of Commerce, assisted by John Wood, secretary, Roanoke (Va.) Chamber of Commerce, and Colvin B. Brown, chief organization service bureau, civic department, United States Chamber of Commerce.

Five Cents a Day Paid Hatters. The use of beaver in making hats commenced about 1200, for Chaucer mentions it. Flinders turned out the arrived at by vote, each citizen writing his vote on an oyster shell. The Greek word for oyster shell, expressed in our alphabet, is ostrakon, and because the ostrakon was used as a ballot, the word was used to mean ostracism, which means blackballing or expelling.

Once Used as Symbols. The earliest hat was a symbol—away back 6000 years ago, when the Egyptians invented it, to show the rank of men. And then, along the Tigris and Euphrates hats appeared as helmets of fighting men. The archaic picture of Naram-Sin, ruler of Agade, shows him in a helmet with curved horns. Cloth and fur came first—hats modeled after the tiger skin idea—and then, legend runs, St.

Client invented the mode of felting rabbits fur. Cloth hoods and matted caps, also developed through armor. The more general use of hats seems to have originated in England with the Norman conquest, 1066 A. D., and in the Thirteenth century hats with brims appeared. In 1254 Pope Innocent IV authorized the wearing of hats by cardinals. Medieval plumed hats appeared about this time.

The Detroit Federation of Labor has completed a new labor temple. It has been hammering away at it at home. While in the University of Virginia he easily captured the oratory medal in the Jeffersonian society. Tommy has also from time to time written letters on the condition of the South, which have been published in the Evening Post and very highly commended. Is neither married nor engaged.

Among the Brahmins the ruby is a favorite jewel, as they imagine that it acts as a charm against fire.

THRIFT IS HIS SUBJECT

Make It National Trait, Says Postmaster General Hayes.

Cleveland.—There has never been a time in this country when the people so much needed thrift. Postmaster General Will H. Hayes told members of the National Association of Life Underwriters at their thirty-second annual banquet in Hotel Winton.

"We need thrift in government, thrift in business and thrift in individuals," Mr. Hayes declared. "I hope to see it so emphasized that it becomes a national trait. Life insurance is the practical application of thrift. It is more than that. It is applied common sense."

While thrift was the keynote of the postmaster general's speech, his talk also was to a great extent an accounting of the six months of stewardship of the administration and he was tumultuously applauded from time to time as he spoke of the record of President Harding's regime. "In helping start the country's industries and business on the road to normalcy."

His audience literally went wild when he promised that the refunding of the war indebtedness "would be spread over a period of a great many years and would not be harnessed on to the present generation," and the response was just as spontaneous when he referred to the forthcoming peace conference in Washington as what "will be the most fruitful period since the war." The annual election, held at the afternoon session, resulted in the election of the following officers: President, John L. Shuff, Cincinnati; vice president, Miss Florence Shaal, Boston (re-elected); A. O. Swink, Richmond; Wilson Williams, New Orleans; treasurer, Graham C. Wells, New York (re-elected); secretary, J. H. Russell, Los Angeles.

HONOR GEN. LAFAYETTE

Men of Two Nations Pay Homage to Noted Frenchman.

Mount Vernon, Va.—Brave memories that have woven a fabric of liberty loving friendship around French and American heartstrings were stirred when men of the two nations gathered at the tomb of George Washington to celebrate the joint anniversary of the birth of Lafayette and the beginning of the first battle of the Marne.

The ceremonies were under the auspices of the Lafayette day national committee, with James M. Beck, solicitor general of the United States, presiding, and messages of friendship were read from Presidents Harding and Millerand, Marshal Joffre, victor of the Marne; Marshal Foch, Gen. Pershing, Premier Briand, Secretaries Hughes and Denby and Ambassador Herrick.

The presence of the marine band and of French, American, British and other army and navy officers in uniform lent an official air to the celebration. The journey from Washington was made by steamer and as the procession wound up over the quiet lawn to the tomb, the lilacs of France and the French tricolor, carried by an American bluejacket, and a khaki-clad soldier headed the column flanked by American colors in the hands of French and American marines.

At the tomb a wreath was placed in the vault with simple ceremony and the party trooped up to the wide lawn to tell again of the Frenchman, born 164 years ago, with the call of human liberty stirring with his first pulse and of the great day seven years ago when Joffre let loose the valor of France and England to stem the tide of German advance and draw a new frontier of liberty at the Marne.

WASP STING AIDS MULE

Pricks Animal's Tail and Turf Event Ends in Tie.

New York.—The sting of a wasp which lit on the tail of Happy B., the black racing mule driven in the mile race at the Dutchess county fair in Rhinebeck, N. Y., by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., caused the second annual running of this classic turf event to end in a tie.

When Mrs. Roosevelt and Mes. Webb appeared on the track seated in sulkeys they received hearty applause. Mrs. Webb's sulky, similar to those used by the Grand Circuit drivers, was more racy looking than the antique affair Mrs. Roosevelt used, which, one of the judges remarked, was of the vintage of 1870.

After Mrs. Webb had won the draw for position and chosen the pole, it looked like anything but an interesting race. Then the bell rang and the race was on.

For three-quarters of the distance it was an uneven race and everybody was disappointed. Then, like a cloudburst, something happened to Happy B. and before the crowd had a chance to learn the reason, the two women were driving down to the finish in a thrilling race. A wasp had stung Mrs. Webb's sulky, and without the use of a whip or kind word, he came from far behind and crossed the line neck and neck with Mrs. Webb's black mule, Nellie.

Fire Hits Oldest Town. Annapolis, Md. N. S.—The business section of the town was destroyed by fire which raged unchecked because of lack of water due to the prolonged drought. Buildings in the path of the fire were demolished with dynamite. More than 25 buildings were destroyed. Homeless families were being cared for in town and in the village of Clementsport. This town is the oldest in Canada and with the exception of St. Augustine, Fla., the oldest European settlement in North America.

Still on the Market. Consul James G. Carter of Tananarive has been informed that the total quantity of cloves produced in Madagascar during the 1920-21 season amounted to 20 tons. It appears that the outlook for the 1921-22 crop is very good.

Has to Hold Them. Joe Tuukins says the reason a speaker is long-winded is that after he has got a few auditors going he's afraid to let them get away and think things over.

DERIVATION OF "BLONLINE." The term "blondine" as it is generally used in the verb form, as to "blondine the hair," has never been accepted by any lexicographer, and is not to be found in the standard dictionaries. The term is said to have been derived from a proprietary preparation bearing the title "blondine," which was employed as a hair bleach. The inventor of the preparation may have derived the word from the French "blondin," to grow yellow. The Ox-

BLOUSES LOOK WITH FAVOR UPON THE VOGUE OF BLACK

IN THE pursuit of novelty designers have succeeded in making blouses the most versatile of our belongings. They reflect every new idea that enters the field of fashion, besides exploiting some that are their own. The charm of novelty is about all that can be added to them—they have captured the most beautiful fabrics, made the whole range of colors their own and are developed in as many different styles as dresses are. The overblouse grows in popularity; it is a dominating affair that determines the character of the toilette, and it is vastly becoming because it disposes of the waistline in such a satisfactory way.

The vogue of black, and black and white, has been made the most of in a distinguished company of blouses for late summer and for fall. They are all in the overblouse and tie-back styles and nearly all of crepe de chine, georgette or other crepe weaves in silk. In addition to these fabrics is used in combination with other crepes as in the blouse pictured here, which has a yoke and sleeves of black georgette and body of white crepe de chine.

AUTUMN HATS PROMISE RICH WINTER MILLINERY

NEARLY all the hats presented at the early showings of autumn millinery can cheerfully undertake to see their wearers through the winter. They are handmade hats, of fabrics that have a warm look, and many of the colors in these fabrics are glowing. Velvet, plain or panne, a heavy satin that suggests hatters' plush, duvety and all its numerous kindred, make lovely mediums for autumnal colors—the purple, fuchsia, cerise, red-browns and pleasant tones, bright red and strong, clear blues—even the new dark grays refuse to be cold and could not well be, in the fashionable fabrics.

One may gather at a glance over any of the displays of new hats, that they are draped affairs and that they are soft as to lines. Also, both in their making and trimming, they bear witness to the handwork of professionals that are adepts in their art. Hats appropriate the decorative features of gowns and go farther. To bonnets, they add many millinery ornaments, and among these are new arrivals made of metal—that it is hard to call by name. Brim edges, and other edges find themselves finished with small metallic oblongs bent over them, and numerous dangles are used in the same positions. "Nail heads" are used, and have been elaborated. The hat at the top of the group has metallic ornaments set about the upper brim edge, making an attractive finish for the drapery drape. At the left of it a felt hat with satin drapery approves lacquered fruits and demonstrates the beauty of two small apples that hang on the brim. Velvet is responsible for the richness of the spirited shape at the right, with flower motifs applied in chenille about the brim edge.

One of the new large-crowned shapes finishes the group. It has a velvet facing on the under brim, edged with folded ribbon across the front, and is otherwise covered with duvety, having a metallic net drawn over it.

May Wear White Next to Face. The woman who likes to wear a touch of white next to the face must indeed be pleased just now, as she can, to her heart's desire, follow her own inclination and feel that she is quite in the latest fashion. Black and white seems to be more popular than ever before.

Vase and Mirror. An effect that any home decorator can have in her rooms nowadays is an artistic vase that matches her flowers, for holders tall or shallow, big or little, come in every imaginable tint of the rainbow. So Jonquils may have a yellow bowl to match and carnations a pink jar that exactly tones, if desired. Mirrors set in easel frames of blue, green and gold are pined in up-to-date rooms, either upon tables, desks, bookcases or mantels.

Using Leftover Roast Beef. Leftover roast beef may be made into a savory stew with onions and potatoes.

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 18
ABSTINENCE FOR SAKE OF OTHERS (TEMPERANCE LESSON).

LESSON TEXT—1 Cor. 10:23-28; 1 Th. II. GOLDEN TEXT—Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.—1 Cor. 10:31.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Rom. 12:3; 14:13-21; 15:1, 2; 1 Cor. 6:3-20; 9:19-27.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Clean, Strong Body.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Win the Race. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Presenting One's Body as a Living Sacrifice.
THE TRUE MEANING OF TEMPERANCE.

The occasion of this teaching was the uncertainty as to the right attitude toward "things sacrificed unto idols." This problem was most vital while the Christians were in the midst of the heathen, and with some modifications no less vital still. In mingling with society many perplexing questions arise, such as amusements, way of spending Sunday, enjoyment of luxuries, owning stock in certain corporations, etc. Our lesson contains principles adequate for our guidance in all these problems.

It was customary to divide the animal offered in sacrifice into three parts. One part was consumed on the altar, another part was given to the priest, and the third part was kept by the party bringing the offering. The priest's part was frequently sold in the markets. The part which the offerer kept was sometimes eaten at home and sometimes in the court of the temple. The Christian who bought meat in the market was liable to get meat which had been dedicated to the idol god. Then, too, one would be liable to eat socially the table of someone who had kept his portion of his offering and now set it before his guests. Some with adequate knowledge had no scruples about it; others with less knowledge thought it sinful. The one who has knowledge should bear with the weak one, and at the same time seek to teach his brother the truth so as to set him free from bondage of superstition. The glory of God should control in all things.

I. "All Things Are Lawful for Me" (v. 23).
This declaration is limited, of course, by things which are right in themselves. It is not true that a Christian is free to do those things which are wrong. The Christian can only indulge in "lawful things" as they are expedient and unto edification.

As individual Christians we have liberty to do many things which because of their influence on our fellow Christians we should abstain from. Certain amusements may be lawful to indulge in but such indulgence may influence others in the wrong way and result in their ruin. Even with one's self that which is not edifying should be ruled out.

II. "Let No Man Seek His Own" (v. 24).
The Christian is under the control of love. The controlling principle of love is usefulness. The one dominated by love considers the other's interests rather than his own. One has a perfect right to arise at midnight and play the piano, but if he lives in an apartment, or even in a house in town, it is wrong to do so, for he would disturb his neighbor.

III. "Eat the Food Set Before You" (vv. 25-30).
It is not incumbent upon us to be on the hunt for occasions of the conscience either of ourselves or others. Record your freedom in the enjoyment of all right things which the Lord places before you, but as soon as it is brought to your attention that certain things are to the disadvantage of others, you should desist; that is, exercise self-control.

IV. "Do All to the Glory of God" (v. 31).
This is the grand and supreme rule of life for the Christian. The Christian is not at liberty to do that upon which he could not ask the blessing of God. In all our concerns here below we should have God's glory before us constantly. In our eating, employments and pleasures, we should have as our transcendent aim God's glory. How could one ask God's blessing upon the intoxicating cup, dancing, gambling, theatergoing, Sunday desecration, luxurious extravagance, etc?

V. "Give No Occasion for Anyone to Stumble" (v. 32).
We should so live that no one can ever say that we have been the occasion of their downfall.

VI. Follow the Example of Jesus Christ (1:1).
Christ, through love gave up all for the sake of others. He did not please himself. Everyone, therefore, who is a Christian should imitate Him.

VII. The Christian's Body is the Temple of the Holy Ghost (3:16, 17).
This great truth is true of the Church as a body, but that which is true of the body is true of the individual composing the body; so the point in this Scripture is the serious consequence of defiling the body.

The Lesson of the Lily. To the thoughtful mind, the lily-blossom is a wicket in the great unseen portal of death, through which we may obtain bright glimpses of what is beyond. It opens in all its snowy purity and exquisite grace from the dry, withered sheaf, as the transfigured immortal life bursts from the temporary imprisonment of death. And if the death of the plant should thus blossom into undreamt of beauty, what infinite possibilities better than our brightest hopes are held by that darkness which bounds our vision here! He who raises up the lilies every summer, each from its own root in the mould, will not leave our life in the dust.—Hugh Macmillan.

Why That Bad Back?

Is backache keeping you miserable? Are you "all played out," without strength or vigor for your work? Then find what is causing the trouble and correct it. Likely, it's your kidneys. You have probably been working too hard and neglecting rest and exercise. Your kidneys have slowed up and poisons have accumulated. That, then, is the cause of the backache, headaches, dizziness and other ailments. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

THE TRIALS OF A HOUSEWIFE

How They Have Been Endured and How Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Experience of a Providence Woman

Providence, R. I.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a female trouble and backache. I began just after my baby was born, and I did the best I could about getting my work done, but I had awful bearing-down pains so I could not stand on my feet. I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the good it was doing other women, and I have got dandy results from it and will always recommend it. You can use these facts as a testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. HERBERT L. CASSEN, 18 Meni Court, Providence, R. I.

An Illinois woman relates her experience: Bloomington, Ill.—"I was never very strong and female trouble kept me so weak I had no interest in my housework. I had such a backache I could not cook a meal or sweep a room without raging with pain. Rubbing my back with alcohol sometimes eased the pain for a few hours, but did not stop it. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and six bottles of it have made me as strong and healthy as any woman; and I give my thanks to do my housework. I recommend your medicine to my friends and you may publish my testimonial."—Mrs. CHESTER A. BALL, R. 15, Fayette, Ohio.

The conditions described by Mrs. Cassen, Mrs. Ball, and Mrs. McQuitty will appeal to many women who struggle on with their daily tasks in just such conditions—in fact, it is said that the tragedy in the lives of some women is almost beyond belief. Day in and day out they slave in their homes for their families—and the daily routine of housework, often make clothes for themselves and for their children; or work in their gardens, all the while suffering from those awful bearing-down pains, backache, headaches, nervousness, the blues, and troubles which sap the very foundation of life until there comes a time when nature gives out and an operation seems inevitable. If such women would only profit by the experience of these three women, and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the natural restorative for such conditions it may save them years of suffering and unhappiness.

There is hardly a neighborhood in any town or hamlet in the United States wherein some woman does not reside who has been restored to health by this famous medicine. Therefore ask your neighbor, and you will find in a great many cases that at some time or other she, too, has been benefited by taking it, and will recommend it to you. For more than forty years this old-fashioned root and herb medicine has been restoring suffering women to health and strength.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

"It was from Waldron then, no doubt. I'm glad you told me. The chances are they will both be where we are going, unless they have already quarreled over that bunch of easy money you spoke about."

"But has that been paid over by Krantz? Who has it?"

"The fellow who put a knife into Alva—whichever he may be."

"And you don't know who the assassin was?"

"No. Only it must have been one of certain men; perhaps two were in the affair. At first I figured it out to be Waldron alone; now I am not so sure that Harris didn't have some hand in it. They may have had the affair all planned—the money was passed over to Alva early in the evening. I didn't know it then; I learned this later. Krantz told me when we were alone on the way back to New York. Let's move along; there is a policeman coming yonder."

The officer passed us slowly, swinging his club, and eyed us curiously as he went by; I did not turn my head, yet felt certain he stopped and looked back as though wondering what our business could be in that neighborhood. We turned down a still darker side street before exchanging further speech.

"I believe I know what you are, an 'agent of the Secret Service.'"

"Oh, no; the honor you offer me is far too great. I have not attained to any such official dignity."

"I rather expected you to deny; but you offer me no other explanation."

"And so you decide to believe that? Very well, Mr. Severn, I shall let you have it your own way. You deserve reward; only, pray, never suggest this theory to any one else. Let it remain our secret, will you?"

"Your mockery does not change my mind."

"I had no expectation that it would; neither does it bring me a salary. But, seriously, forget all this rallery to-night, and remember only that you are with Marie Gessler. Whatever her purpose may be, you are to be loyal only to her."

"I am, absolutely," I replied with a conviction my voice was unable to disguise. She turned her face quickly, and in the dim light our eyes met.

"You said that very earnestly. You make me believe I judged you right, Philip Severn. Here is my hand."

I clasped it tightly, the firm pressure of the warm fingers sending an instant thrill through every nerve of my body. It was not withdrawn, and we walked so closely together I could feel the slight pressure of her form, almost resting against mine.

"Where are you taking me?"

"To Peron's French cafe—have you ever heard of it?"

"No, I think not."

"I have been there with slumming parties once or twice, with a plain clothes man along, of course, to show us the sights. It is not very respectable, I believe, although really I never saw anything particularly dangerous. Interesting and unconventional, of course, but I anticipate no trouble unless we care to make it ourselves. You see the cluster of lights at the next corner. That's Peron's."

As I gazed forward, she drew her hand from my grasp, and her form straightened.

"What am I to do when we arrive?"

"Merely be the attentive escort—but not too attentive, please. Have you dined?"

"No. I was going to ask you."

"You need not ask me—I am famished, and this place is really famous for its meals."

Peron's was really underground; at least you descended a broad pair of steps to attain its entrance, and the glass in windows and doors fronting the street was heavily draped, preventing any view of the interior from without. What was overhead could not be determined in the darkness, my eyes merely discerning the outlines of a tall building, without a gleam of light showing anywhere from top to bottom. The front of the restaurant, however, was brilliantly lit, and a colored man in uniform promptly held open the door as we began descending the stairs.

Within the vestibule a maid relieved us of outside wraps, and thus unencumbered we advanced through open doors directly into the main room. This was a surprisingly large apartment, filled with tables of various sizes and shapes, the majority occupied by men and women, either eating or drinking. Near the center was a cleared space for dancing, but at that moment no music was being played against the farther wall, on a rather high stage, two cabaret singers were noisily entertaining the crowd. Altogether it was a stirring and attractive scene, bearing to my mind no resemblance of any preconceived notion of the underworld.

As we entered, a maid had entered, rather, the restaurant of an ultra-fashionable hotel the other side of Broadway.

Nor did our entrance create the slightest interest, beyond awakening the attention of the head waiter, who met us smilingly.

"A table for two, M'sieur?"

"A booth, please; have you one near the center?" and I slipped a bill into his hand, which closed it instantly out of sight.

"Ah, certainly; the very thing, M'sieur. I will show you, Francois, the central booth for the gentlemen. Ah, see, M'sieur—bien, tres bien!"

It was indeed a cozy spot, with the heavy curtains held aside. A divan of soft pink across the end, a table covered with snowy linen, and already glistening with silver and glass, in the center, and three exceedingly comfortable chairs.

"It is very fine, M'sieur," I said. "Quite to my satisfaction. You might lower one of those curtains, if you will. Yes, that is much better. Is Francois our waiter?"

"Oui, M'sieur; you would be served! The table de host, Francois. These dishes are ready—but, M'sieur, we serve quickly whatever you wish."

He spread his hands expressively, glanced swiftly about to assure himself all was well, and backed out, still politely bowing, leaving the attentive Francois beside me, and in hand. At my suggestion the lady gave the order, using discretion, I thought, while I supplemented with a bottle of wine, in spite of the energetic negative conveyed to me across the table. As the waiter departed I surveyed my companion, realizing as never before how extremely attractive she was. She must have read something of this in my eyes, for her own smiled wistfully.

"What is it you were thinking about?"

"Perhaps I had better not tell."

"Another story? Well, then, answer this—what do you think of Peron's?"

"Actually I am unable to realize where I am," I answered honestly. "The contrast from those dark streets, suggestive of crime, to this brilliancy is altogether too sudden. It has left me dazed; my mind refuses to function."

"It affected me that way the first visit. I could not convince myself of the true nature of the place; it seemed—well, altogether too respectable. I always associated the underworld with roughness and poverty, police surveillance, and all that. But look out there; it is like a big hotel dining-room after the play. Those women—some of them, at least—are really elegantly dressed, and in excellent taste, and there is no more noise, no more coarseness, than I have witnessed at the Waldorf. The men are not bad-looking, either, do you think?"

"Well, there are all grades here, now that I look about; as yet, as you say, the average is not bad. Probably they will grow even lower in the evening, when they take the lid off."

"I don't believe they ever do—that is, entirely. Mr. McLaughlin, the detective who came with us, said this was really the most dangerous place in town from the police viewpoint. Its very surface quiet made it a special menace. Nothing was ever permitted to occur here which would give the department any excuse for a raid. If there was a fight, or even a murder, it was hushed up instantly, and the victim hidden away, before even the patrolman on the block could hear about it. He mentioned several cases, and said the waiters were especially selected to take care of any rough house."

"Perhaps that is what makes it popular with the class they cater to."

"Safe, you mean. Yes; he said they could spot any criminal of reputation in the country at Peron's, if they only waited long enough; that half the big jobs in New York were plotted at these tables."

"I begin to comprehend," I said jocularly. "Why I was received as a distinguished guest. The headwaiter about the moment we entered, and my old pal—my face is fortunate."

"He may have mistaken you for Daly," she admitted soberly, "but more likely it was your tip which made him so attentive. You are some responder, Mr. Severn."

"That depends on who I am with; this is an unusual occasion."

She did not smile, or look at me, but leaned slightly forward, drawing back a fold of the curtain with one hand, so as to gain a wider glimpse of the large room without. A moment she remained motionless; then turned her face sideways toward me.

"Waldron is already here," she whispered warningly. "He is alone at that second table, against the pillar. Step around this side and you can see; the man with gray, bushy hair."

I could not easily have mistaken the fellow; his appearance was too emphatically that of the Russian Jew of a certain type to enable him to conceal his birthright. His back was toward us, yet as he occasionally cast his eyes about over the faces of those around him, I had a glimpse of a beaked nose, and a limp, dull complexion, which seemed to blend naturally into a scraggly beard of no perceptible color. His hair though was iron-gray, apparently uncut for weeks, and thrust back from an unusually high forehead, so as to give the man a ruffled, unkempt appearance far from pleasing. He was big all over, strangely burly for a Jew, with broad shoulders and large hands, thickly covered with hair.

I moved back around the table as Francois appeared, and resumed my seat, keeping silent until the waiter again bowed, and left us alone.

"And now that you have located the fellow," I asked curiously, "what do you propose doing—go out and talk with him?"

She shook her head.

"I have reason to believe he expects to meet some one here," she explained. "I do not know who, but that is one thing I desire to find out. From what you have told me tonight I rather think now it may be Harris."

"To talk it over, at least; they'd hardly bring the stuff in here. Probably by this time that is safely plotted."

Francois came back, and we devoted ourselves to the meal, although I could observe her glancing constantly through the opening in the curtains to make sure of her man. Finally Francois disappeared with the remnants, while we awaited the serving of dessert. From my seat I could see nothing of the Russian.

"No one arrived yet?" I inquired.

"The Jew still there?"

"He remains alone eating. Ah! my guess was right—isn't that Harris, who has just come in?"

It was "Gentleman George" beyond the shadow of a doubt. He had evidently located Waldron the moment of entering the room, and with no other thought in his mind headed straight toward where the latter sat. The Jew glanced up, saw him approaching, and drew partially back from the table, the knife he had been using still gripped in his hand.

His posture was that of defense, of one who anticipates possible attack. Nor did Harris' expression and manner render this improbable. The latter pushed his way forward with angry strides, until he reached the man he sought, leaning over the table to front him, his face black with passion, his eyes glaring, his mouth wide open as he uttered a string of words above the din of a jazz band.

ceal his birthright. His back was toward us, yet as he occasionally cast his eyes about over the faces of those around him, I had a glimpse of a beaked nose, and a limp, dull complexion, which seemed to blend naturally into a scraggly beard of no perceptible color. His hair though was iron-gray, apparently uncut for weeks, and thrust back from an unusually high forehead, so as to give the man a ruffled, unkempt appearance far from pleasing. He was big all over, strangely burly for a Jew, with broad shoulders and large hands, thickly covered with hair.

I moved back around the table as Francois appeared, and resumed my seat, keeping silent until the waiter again bowed, and left us alone.

"And now that you have located the fellow," I asked curiously, "what do you propose doing—go out and talk with him?"

She shook her head.

"I have reason to believe he expects to meet some one here," she explained. "I do not know who, but that is one thing I desire to find out. From what you have told me tonight I rather think now it may be Harris."

"To talk it over, at least; they'd hardly bring the stuff in here. Probably by this time that is safely plotted."

Francois came back, and we devoted ourselves to the meal, although I could observe her glancing constantly through the opening in the curtains to make sure of her man. Finally Francois disappeared with the remnants, while we awaited the serving of dessert. From my seat I could see nothing of the Russian.

"No one arrived yet?" I inquired.

"The Jew still there?"

"He remains alone eating. Ah! my guess was right—isn't that Harris, who has just come in?"

It was "Gentleman George" beyond the shadow of a doubt. He had evidently located Waldron the moment of entering the room, and with no other thought in his mind headed straight toward where the latter sat. The Jew glanced up, saw him approaching, and drew partially back from the table, the knife he had been using still gripped in his hand.

CRIMINALS USE THEIR BRAINS

"A session of Roguery Today Has Been to Dignify Almost Approaching a Fine Art."

The big room of jewelry in the south of France recently was a reminder of the equality of the modern criminal. The thieves may have been men, but the probability is that they were impostors from England or Australia or the United States.

Criminals engaged in the "big push" are much-traveled men. The whole world is their hunting ground. A few thousand miles are of little moment when thousands of dollars are the ultimate goal.

Expert jewel thieves, confidence tricksters, card sharps, exponents of the "infalible" betting system—all at one time or another make tours of the world, if necessary, in order to pick up wealthy victims and by skillful nursing fill them into a belief that dishonesty is a silly rumor.

With their infallible fact.

It does seem strange to the millions of people who carefully guard their pennies that men are to be found who will hand over thousands of dollars to comparative strangers only to find when too late that they have been swindled.

A fool and his money, we are told, soon part; yet, as a matter of fact, it is the man who regards himself as shrewd and careful who is most sought after by these ingenious intriguers. The fool is apt to be too suspicious; and, anyway, he has much more to lose than the man who has been swindled.

Britain has among its first-class passengers criminals who are making the voyage for the pleasure of "working."

—From Continental Edition of the London Mail.

Never the Same Again.

It was a perfect French night. In other words, the rain was coming down steadily and the mud was at its stickiest. In "squad" formation—twos, threes, fives and sixes—a regiment of Buffaloes was moving into an alleged new camp. The accent was on the camp.

The most forlorn of all the forlorn crew staggered against a barracks doorway, where he was accosted by a white non-com.

"Well, Sam, whyn't you think of this war now? Pretty good war?"

With facial expression that said he meant it, Sam replied:

"Boss, dis yeah war never was a good war—and dis last day practically done ruined it completely."—American Legion Weekly.

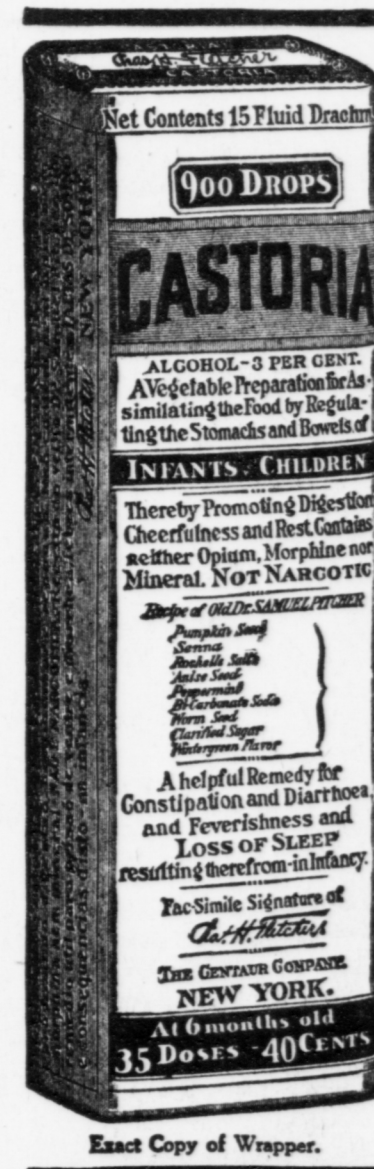

Meanings of Dream Faces.

To see a grim, distorted face denotes suffering. To see a handsome face of the opposite sex, good news and happiness. To dream your face is handsome signifies long life, but if pinched and pale, sorrow, loss of a friend. If your face is dirty and you wash it, you will repent of some act.

It with care as if aware that it must be husbanded. Water glasses, and glasses, candles, sundials and clocks of every description show how in all ages the responsibility of putting this precious gift of time to proper use has been recognized.—London Times.

Children Cry For

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be blamed. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disgraced by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for infants and children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

CATARRAH DEAFNESS

is greatly relieved by constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrh Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and assisting Nature in restoring normal conditions.

WHY JOHN WAS NOT SMOKING

Probably the Wildest Idea of His Clubmates Would Have Been Wide of the Mark.

All the men at the club have been watching Johnnie Edwards, the inveterate smoker, for the last week, and there's been much surmising and conjecturing, but Johnnie wouldn't give himself away. It seems that Johnnie has held the prize for the champion smoker of the club for ten years.

In the last week Johnnie has been seen strolling around the room with a dejected, lost appearance and between his lips always the inevitable cigarette. But it was never lighted. Nobody liked to ask him questions and he didn't volunteer any explanation, so it wasn't explained until Jimmie Vanhook overheard him say on the telephone:

"No, you have got to stick to your word now. I swore off if you would, and goodness knows I want one bad enough, but Doc says you've gotta leave 'em alone for a while. Now be a good little mother and remember your promise."—New York Sun.

The Folly of Cheating Nature

Many people get the idea that they can keep their nerves on edge and their digestion upset year after year, and "get away with it." They sleep only half as much as they should—and never get properly and thoroughly rested.

If you tire out easily, if you are getting pale and anemic, if your food doesn't digest as it should, would it not be well to stop and consider whether coffee or tea is having its effect on you?

The caffeine and their found in coffee and tea are drugs, as any doctor can tell you. Is it any wonder that the steady use of these drugs sometimes causes serious damage?

HALF A CENTURY

Oklahoman Praises Black-Draught, Having Used It "Can Safely Say for 50 Years."

Grandfield, Okla.—One of the best known farmers of Tillman County, Mr. O. W. Theford, who owns and manages a wagon yard here, says:

"I have used Theford's Black-Draught—I believe I can safely say for fifty years.

"I was born and reared in Texas, Freestone County, sixty-four years ago. I have been married forty-four years. My father used Black-Draught before I was married, and gave it to us. For forty-four years of my married life, it has had a place on our medicine shelf, and is the only laxative, or liver medicine, we use. We use it for torpid liver, sour stomach, headache, indigestion. . . I don't think we could get along without it, knowing what it has done for us, and the money it has saved. It is just as good and reliable today as it was when we began its use. My boys use it and they are satisfied it's the best liver medicine they have ever used."

Theford's Black-Draught is purely vegetable; not disagreeable to take and acts in a prompt and natural way. So many thousands of persons have been benefited by the use of Theford's Black-Draught, you should have no hesitancy in trying this valuable old well-established remedy for most liver and stomach disorders. NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS

Sept. 14, 1921.—To the taxpayers of Bath county: I am at my office in the Court House in Owingsville, Ky., for the purpose of assessing your property for taxes for this present year, 1921, so please come one and all at your earliest opportunity and give me a list of your taxable property. It may be more pleasant and more satisfactory to you to come in person to me at my office and give your list in to me myself than to call on you at your homes and take your list at your homes. A hint to the wise should be sufficient. I will be at my office at all reasonable hours to take any person's list and I will endeavor to treat you fair and right, according to the law. Please come through the week days and give in your list and don't wait till Saturday or County Court Day or some other public day, for on these days we are always crowded and would cause you to possibly have to make a second trip. So please come at once it will be a favor to me and will do you no harm.

Your most obedient servant,
W. D. BAILEY,
Bath County Tax Commissioner.

Will not for Marvin for he's at rest
At home in Heaven among the blest,
Weep not for him again I say,
For he now treads the Golden Way.
The angels came with silent tread
And gathered 'round our darling's bed,
They bore him in their arms of love,
We'll meet again where comes no night,
We'll meet again in realms of light,
We'll meet our loved one among the blest,
Farewell our darling sweetly rest.
